We attempt, in this thesis, to make a contribution to the study of Gallicanism, by analyzing the main features of Edmond Richer's thought and the characters that formed it. Richer was one of the great actors of Gallicanism, as much by the interest of his theories as by his influence in the 17th and especially in the 18th centuries, and the wide range of his ideas allows us to embrace the main questions relating to Gallicanism. This is why, in order to better situate it in its historical context, we have had to examine the structure, the evolution and the main transformations of Gallicanism. Conscious that a movement of ideas is rarely independent of its historical moment, and is most often open to external pressures, we have analyzed summarily some of the facts which have acted on the course of Gallicanism, and consequently on Richer: Ultramontanism, Protestantism and the League. A study of this kind would have been incomplete if we had not at least sketched out the influence of Richer, and this led us to Jansenism, and to a lesser degree to the Divine Right of Kings. This means that we have approached, directly or indirectly, some of the main political and religious theories from the 13th to the 18th centuries. We therefore hope to have painted as complete a picture as possible of Richer and Gallicanism, and our goal will have been achieved, if the figure of our author stands out fully.

学術調査における学位論文の重要性

学位論文と学術分野のトレンド

多くの研究者は、学位論文でとりあげたテーマをさらに掘り下げたり、学位論文の一部を学術雑誌に論文として投稿したりしています。

学位論文は、学術誌で発表する前の一種の「準備段階」の役割を果たします。査読論文よりデータや方法論が詳述されています。

学位論文は、研究テーマに関する包括的な書誌情報の掲載が義務付けられており、これらは後続研究への指針となります。
